

CERTIFICATE IV IN WORKPLACE HEALTH AND SAFETY

BSB41415

A Certificate IV in Workplace Health and Safety (WH&S) BSB41415 is now the minimum requirement for OHS management in most Australian workplaces. OHS provides a nationally recognised on-line and face-to-face training program for students to gain this qualification.

The Certificate IV in Work Health and Safety training course is the usual minimum requirement for those in Brisbane and Australia who want to commence a career in occupational health & safety. After completing this qualification, you will be able to work as a health and safety practitioner and become responsible for the corresponding WH&S functions within a workplace.

The online program has its advantages – you can start any time you like, it is self-paced and we offer support by some of the most qualified WH&S experts in Australia, with current real world experience (see our people's projects on our website to get a picture of the vast experience that your trainers have – they are not academics without real world experience!)
